Econ Workshop Hears Tax Danger

Our government's great reliance on corporation taxes and individual income taxes is a serious threat to the nation's economy, and it could be the fatal blow in a period of unproductivity.

Such is the view of Claude Fawcett, western field representative of the National Association of Manufacturers, who spoke at the Utah Workshop on Economic Education Wednesday morning at BYU.

The need for a better balanced tax program was one of several subjects broached by the NAM official, describing the viewpoint of U. S. business on national problems.

Karl Marx's theory that the capitalist economy must eventually slide from size to socialism has been successfully refuted, according to Mr Fawcett, who listed four reasons why Marx was wrong.

1. Ownership is no longer restricted as it was in Marx's day, but widely spread.

2. The corporations and businesses that are considered too big are beginning to de-centralize. "The competition of products within a single firm is not a false competition," he said.

3. It is pretty well agreed that the government is no good at operating business where private industry is able to succeed.

4. Under our modern industrial system, it's difficult to socialize one industry without socializing all industry.

The guest speaker singled out some apparent trends in U. S. business. Industry is making use of elderly personel who would ordinarily retire at age 65. The physically handicapped are being absorbed in the labor market by many progressive companies, an attraction program continue to spread and grow.

"For the most part, labor is doing a good job in developing capable leadership," Dr. Fawcett observed. "There aren't many Dave Becks, and the leadership that is coming along will help cure many of labor's ills."

Dr. Fawcett is one of two national figures to address workshop members Seymour Brandwein, a national representative from AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington, D.C., will talk on labor's views on labor-management relations and other national issues, Friday morning

FREEDOM OF THOUGHT

Is there such a thing as "Freedom of Thought? Living in an era when the Civil Rights issue and "Fifth Amendment pleading" bring the Bill of Rights under close observation, it seems paradoxical to question the very existence of freedom to think. But the question remains, do we really have freedom of thought?

In his novel, 1984, George Orwell projects life to a slave state existence only 27 years away. The mind becomes a simple, unfunctioning element, leaving virtually no opportunity for creative thinking.

To accomplish this, Orwell introduces Newspeak, a language dedicated to eliminating provocative words. One way of extinguishing thinking, and though improbable and impractical, it remains adequate clause for consideration.

Slave state existence of the past two decades has not even approached the intensity of 1984. Hitler's spartan disciples, subject to the outstanding disciplinary propaganda of all time, did not lose the "right to think." Which brings back the question, do we have freedom of thought?

What actually brought this all about was a survey on college newspapers, written as part of a master's thesis, including BYU and some 243 other universities and colleges. In this thesis, Miss Virginia Pratt offers facts to show how much freedom of thought there really is in American colleges and universities, if the 243 institutions represent a stable cross section.

Miss Pratt concludes that colleges editors and newspapers possess "a fairly high degree of independence." Which in turn proposes the question "So what?" Exactly what is this all supposed to prove?

When school newspapers have freedom and independence, so does the studentbody as a whole. When newspapers become administrative dummies, the studentbody suffers by having its freedom of thought controlled, if not, in a sense, eliminated.

Campus newspapers should represent studentbody thinking, for what is the paper but part of the studentbody itself? Without freedom of speech there is little reason for freedom of thought—at least creative thought. Without creative thought, the mind retrogresses, and Orwell's predictions come nearer to reality.

According to Miss Pratt and her figures, Orwell's abstract existence is hardly further away than ever. Freedom of thought remains a practical reality and those doubting it have only to search the campus for evidence.

At BYU, for example, reason, choice and expression, the fundamentals of free-thinking, are encouraged through the arts, sciences, humanities, and especially the communications. As representatives of, from and for the studentbody, Universe staff members are the agency of expressing creative thinking.

Most of the 244 school papers polled are not "administrative dummies" and the staff members have few limitations. At BYU the major standard remains common decency, an ideal banner for anyone who communicates with others.

At BYU, too, freedom of thought gracefully prevails, and with this knowledge, our responsibility is dedicated to perpetuating that freedom.

WHY ATOM BLASTS?

Recently 2,000 American scientists signed a statement prepared by Dr. Linus Pauling which asked the Congress of the United States to halt nuclear bomb testing.

The reason? . . . Scientists warned that each nuclear bomb test spreads an added burden of radioactive elements over the earth. This, they said, is damaging the health of people around the world.

THEIR STATEMENT

"Each added amount of radiation causes damage to the health of human beings all over the world, and causes damage to the pool of human germ plasma such as to lead to an increase in the number of seriously defective children that will be born in future generations," Dr. Pauling wrote in the appeal.

Noted among the signers of this document is Dr. H. J. Muller, a geneticist whose work in mutations (hereditary changes) earned him the Nobel Prize in 1956.

Almost immediately after the petition was made public cries of "red" and "commie" were heard in certain circles attempting to brand the scientists appeal as a Communist organized stunt.

Whether these scientists are or are not left wing in their political thinking is immaterial. One undeniable fact remains in the forefront . . . These atomic blasts are a danger to the welfare of the HUMAN RACE.

LEADERS TALK

In a press conference on June 5, President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he would be delighted to see a total ban on atomic weapons tests, but only if the Soviet Union agreed to a cheat-proof nuclear disarmament system. He said the United States must and will continue to test nuclear weapons.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin announced (also on June 5) that the USSR "is ready to conclude an agreement on the ban on the whole problem of disarmament as well as on its particular aspects, including an agreement on immediate cessation of nuclear weapons tests."

Positive statements similar to these have been bouncing around the news wires for years, but no action has been taken to stop the atomic tests.

At the present time Harold E. Stassen is working for the United States in the London Disarmament Conference, which according to Stassen offers "real hope" for a solution policy in connection with disarmament.

TESTS CONTINUE

But still the blasts continue at Yucca Flat, Nev., Christmas Island, South Pacific and Siberia, USSR. And in the end we may find that our atomic blasts will not only cause as much human suffering as a full scale atomic war.

Let it be said that the leaders of both Communist and Capitalist spheres in the world have failed the people they rule by not working out an agreement to stop these tests.

FALLOUT NOTED

Meanwhile relatively heavy amounts of radioactive fallout has been reported in Salt Lake City, occuring from recent Yucca Flat atomic tests. This fallout is considered to be safe for human tissues according to a measuring team of the Utah State Health Department. But we wonder if the bomb radiation here is destroying human germ plasma to the point of causing the birth of defective children? Is it worth the chance?

RAY TRACY

INCIDENTALLY

As one of the largest student-operated newspapers on campus, the Brigham Young Universe is one of the best equipped. Operating under modern conditions in office in the Clark Memorial Building, and adequate darkroom and photographic facilities. Also several photographers are seeking experience.

Although this is a commercial, it is True, because we need several positions available on the summer Universe staff.

Openings are for reporters, feature writers, photographers and darkroom help. Experience is not required except for photography applicants, who should have some experience with cameras and/or darkroom procedures. Applicants may apply in room 144 Clark Student Service Center.

ANYWHERE I PONDER

Ideally, the musical performances on campus should be of the highest quality yet instructive and interesting. Especially when the enduring works are presented should the presentations be explanatory as well as beautiful. The performance at the Paganini Quartet in last Tuesday's assembly offered edification to both the learned and the unlearned in music.

Henri Hemalinski, first violinist, demonstrated the additional skill of eloquence in speech as he announced each selection Tchaikovsky's light touch yet comprehensive knowledge of music provided effective introductions to the music performed.

The tone quality of the Stradivarius instruments, the technical and interpretive skill of the quartet, and the beauty of the music all added to the beauty of the sound from stage. It was regrettable that the Joseph Smith Auditorium seemed to be in competition with the field house in having strange noises at the wrong time.

Expert Studies Future LDS Enrollments

An expert in statistical research has been appointed by President Ernest L. Wilkinson of Brigham Young University to determine future college enrollments of members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He is Dr. Howard C. Nielson who for the last six years has served as research statistician and economist at the Stanford Research Institute.

President Wilkinson said the study is being made to determine need for future church educational facilities. Brigham Young University student body has doubled since 1950, a situation which has required a vast building program and faculty expansion.

Dr. Nielson also will join the BYU staff as associate professor.

In connection with his public service, Dr. Nielson has published extensively, including five books with statistical studies concerning U.S. population trends, America's demand for wood, newsprint supply situations, California economic activity, and transportation costs.

Indiana University Awards Doctorate To BYU Professor

R. Kent Fielding, assistant professor of history at Brigham Young University, received his Ph.D. degree at June convocation of University of Indiana, according to BYU History Department.

He was recently appointed regional associate of the American Council of Learned Societies for three years. In this capacity he will submit reports and reactions to the council on scholarly developments in this area, with particular regard to the humanities.

Professor Fielding joined the BYU staff in 1952. He received the B.S. degree in 1950 and M.S. degree in 1952, both from BYU. He married Dorothy Stanton and the couple have five children.

Shaving Soap, Spray Nets, . . You Name It

by Al Smith
Summer Universe Writer

The lost and found room at the campus security office is a veritable second-hand dealer's paradise. Among is the variety of lost articles which find their way there. In the past such items as trousers, typewriters, a bass viola, a wallet containing $480 in cash and a picture collection valued at $5,000 have found sanctuary in the security office.

At the present time such amusingly everyday items as shaving soap, spray net, a jam-smeared table knife, a baby's toy duck, eyeglasses, lipstick, Italian doll and a bag of diapers are now housed in the lost 'n found room.

Walter Reid, manager of the lost and found department, emphasized this week the importance of owners claiming lost articles in person and before the statute of limitations expires. Many of the items which are never claimed find their way to various departments in the university and some to the Utah State Hospital and the state training school.

It seems that the greatest problem is created by indistinguishable items such as unmarked hair brushes and lipsticks. From the profusion of such merchandise in the lost and found department it might be assumed a lot of gals are losing their color.

Look around and if you are missing something near and dear it's probably waiting for you at the security office. However, don't try to claim it if you can't identify it.

Graduate Awarded History Scholarship

Klaus J. Hansen of Provo, Brigham Young University graduate history student, received a full tuition scholarship to the Institute on Historical and Archival Management sponsored by Radcliffe College and the Harvard University Department of History.

Ralph Hansen, BYU archivist-assistant reference librarian, received the award last year. It is granted to 15 persons in the United States each year, two receiving scholarships.

Heaton Works On Dance Albums

by Sonya Ward
Summer Universe Writer

"Dancing feet make happy hearts" is the philosophy of H. T. Alumbaugh, president of Windsor records, who was on the campus of Brigham Young University this week to enlist the aid of Professor Israel Heston in developing a series of dance albums.

Alumbaugh heads the world's largest recording company for square, round and folk dance music. Deciding to produce a new series of dance albums with original choreography he wanted one of the nation's outstanding authorities in dancing to work with him.

"Israel Heston, BYU recreation professor, fit the need and fortunately accepted the job," Alumbaugh concluded.

In their three day session together, Alumbaugh and Heston worked out 43 different dances which will be released this fall as eight separate albums for people of all ages, beginning on the kindergarten level.

As to the procedure used in developing new dances, neither of the authorities could give any set process. Alumbaugh pointed to Heston and said it was all a result of his "fertile brains."

Observance of the two men working together gave evidence that both were full of originality and some knowledge of exactly how dances, both experienced and non-experienced will react to various patterns and combinations in folk and round dances.

The record company president explained that after the formal recording is made and dance directions printed, the new albums will be sent to seven areas across the nation to be tested by actual age groups they have been designed for, to see what public reaction will be.

"We just sit back and keep our fingers crossed," he confided.

"I don't think we can go wrong with an LDS choreographer," Alumbaugh continued. "as Mormons are already some of the most extensive users of Windsor records and surely will one of their own people who such an authority on dances developing the albums, they'll be a hit."
